

Morning Affirmations

You are a daughter of the King, beloved and well provided for.

You are bought with a price—the price of your adoption is the blood of Jesus.

You are a royal priestess, serving others on behalf of the King.

Everything you have belongs to the King—manage it well.

The King provides for your needs from His infinite wealth—be generous with what He's given you to manage. There's no end to His provision.

Your husband adores you and needs you. Be his companion.

Your husband makes conscious effort to provide you with good things so that you have no lack. Honor his work and be mindful of the ways he provides.

Your husband gives selflessly, constantly putting you first. Do the same for him.

Be mindful that how you speak influences the children. Let your respect be effusive.

You are a mother who speaks truth and wisdom into the lives of her children.

You are a mother who builds up and encourages.

You are an affectionate mother who plays with her children.

You are an intentional mother who organizes and plans so that needs are met.

You are a vigilant mother who keeps clutter and negative influences out of the way.

You are an encourager, always looking for opportunities to affirm and edify others.

You are generous, always looking for ways to share the good things God provides.

You are here for a reason—God spared your life, rescued you, and placed you right here, right now for His glory.